

Excellence in Environmental Engineering

The American Academy of Environmental Engineers (AAEE) is presenting a dinner and networking seminar on September 23, 2010 at the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California (MWD).

Tim Brick is the Chairman of the Board of Directors for the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. MWD provides drinking water to nearly 19 million residents within a 5,200 square mile service area.

Dr. Kent Sorenson is a CDM Vice President and nationally recognized expert in innovative remediation technologies for chlorinated solvents in groundwater. His work focuses on in situ remediation, microbiology, hydrogeology, and geochemistry.

The annual international Excellence in Environmental Engineering competition of the American Academy of Environmental Engineers honors outstanding projects which typify quality in all facets of environmental engineering practice. This year California had four winning projects, including the overall top prize, the Superior Achievement Award.

MWD's Inland Feeder Program won the Environmental Sustainability Honor Award. The Inland Feeder program was implemented to provide a sustainable water supply to Southern California. The project spans 44 miles from Devil Canyon Afterbay in San Bernardino to its terminus in the south near Diamond Valley Lake and includes three tunnel segments, totaling 18 miles.

CDM's Technology for InSitu Biodegradation of Perchlorate and Nitrate won the top honor, the Superior Achievement Award. This project, located in Rancho Cordova, developed a patented process called Gaseous Electron Donor Injection Technology (GEDIT) that successfully remediates oxidized contaminants in deep, unsaturated soil. CDM collaborated with the US Department of Defense and Aerojet-General Corporation to develop this technology.
